How does this year deliver your curriculum intent?	In Year 13, the curriculum deepens students' analytical and evaluative skills, with a strong emphasis on the validity of information, interpretation of evidence, and the processes involved in the criminal justice system. Students critically explore the roles of the CPS, trial procedures, and the influence of key figures and laypeople in shaping outcomes. These units further develop students' capacity to synthesise theory and evidence, fostering independent thought and academic rigour. By drawing connections between research and real-world legal frameworks, students enhance their ability to debate, reflect on modern societal issues, and articulate informed perspectives. This prepares them not only for higher education but also for active, informed citizenship and potential influence on future policy.
