How does this year deliver your curriculum intent?

The Year 13 Psychology curriculum fulfils the Social Sciences intent by deepening students' understanding of behaviour through socially relevant topics. In Issues and Debates, students examine concepts such as cultural bias, determinism and ethics, enhancing their ability to evaluate diverse perspectives. Topics like Psychopathology, Schizophrenia and Attachment promote empathy and critical thinking about mental health and development. Through Aggression and Gender, students explore biological, psychological and social influences on behaviour. Throughout, students apply research methods, critique theories and develop independent enquiry skills, preparing them to confidently analyse societal issues and contribute meaningfully beyond the classroom.
